FILMS EXPLODE; RUIN BUILDING

Pittsburg Scene Of Accident Today In Which Many Are Killed And Injured.

SEARCHING RUINS FOR THE VICTIMS

Accident Occurred Just Before Noon--Every Office In Structure Was Affected By Shock Of The Explosion.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 27.—At least fifty persons were more or less seriously injured and several are believed to have met their death shortly before noon today when an explosion occurred in the offices of the Columbian film exchange.
Not an office in the eight-story structure escaped without damage and several hundred firemen and policemen are now searching the ruins for the injured and dead.
The cause of the explosion is not known at the present time. Most of the injured are in a serious condition. It is not thought that any person in the rooms of the film company could have escaped death so great was the force of the explosion, but a partial search of the ruins has so far failed to locate any dead.
The explosion caused a panic and the occupants of the building numbering many hundreds rushed wildly for the exits and they became jammed on stairways and at elevators and fought their way to escape.
Many were injured in this way but the majority got out of building. Those most seriously injured were taken to the hospitals.
According to John Miller, manager of the Columbian film company, there were seven persons employed in their offices. As yet none of these have been accounted for.

PALISADES PARK IS DEDICATED TODAY

Nothing Spectacular but Matters of Importance Fill in Program Celebration.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, Sept. 27.—Though today's program of the Hudson-Palms celebration provided no spectacular features, there were many events in Manhattan and the outlying boroughs to occupy public attention. For the most part the day was given over to the formal opening of memorial exhibitions, dedications of various sorts and official receptions in honor of the many distinguished guests from abroad.

One of the interesting events of the forenoon was the dedication of the Interstate Palisades park, extending from thirteen miles along the western shore of the Hudson river from Fort Lee, N. J., to near Piedmont, N. Y. This section has been set aside by the joint action of the New Jersey and New York legislatures as a public park.
Another dedication was that of the Henry Hudson monument erected by private subscription on Buxton Drive, a hill in The Bronx. The Borough of Richmond's contribution to the day's program was an historical parade at Buxton Brook, between New Dorp and Oakwood, with celebrations on the site of the first church on the island to commemorate the first settlement.

The lost vessel was a Norwegian steamer which foundered yesterday nine miles off the lightship.

SOUTH HONORS THE MEMORY OF DARING PRIVATEER LEADER

One Hundredth Anniversary of the Birth of Robert Semmes Will Be Observed.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New Orleans, La., Sept. 27.—By command of General Clement A. Evans, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, and in accordance with resolutions adopted at the last annual session, today was set aside throughout the south for the observance of the birth of Rear Admiral Raphael Semmes, one of the most celebrated heroes of the Confederate states navy.

Admiral Semmes was born in Charles county, Maryland, Sept. 27, 1809. In 1826 he was appointed a midshipman in the United States navy, and in the ensuing winter made his first cruise in the sloop of war Lexington. He saw service during the war with Mexico, assisted at the landing of General Taylor's army at Monterrey and was present at the taking of the City of Mexico.

At the outbreak of the civil war he resigned his commission and immediately offered his services to the Confederate states government. He purchased the Alabama, a promiscuous vessel of 500 tons, lying between New Orleans and Cuba, and hastily equipped her as a commerce-destructor. This vessel he renamed the Sumter and succeeded in taking her out of New Orleans, which was blockaded by the Federals. For several months he cruised along the coast of South America and made many rich captures.

In the latter part of 1861 he crossed the Atlantic, arriving at Cadiz, Jan. 2, 1862. Being closely blockaded at Gibraltar, he sold his ship and with several of his officers went to England and thence to the Bahamas Islands. Soon afterwards he was commissioned captain and sent to England to take command of the new ship building in the Mercury for the Confederate states.

Captain Semmes commissioned the vessel as the Confederate man-of-war Alabama, and on Aug. 24, 1862, began a series of daring and successful cruises, lasting nearly two years. On Jan. 11, 1863, he fought and sank the U. S. steamer Hatteras off Galveston. The following June he encountered the U. S. steamer Kearsarge, in command of Capt. Winslow. After one of the most desperate naval battles of the war, Semmes surrendered and twenty minutes later the Alabama sank. Captain Semmes escaped by jumping overboard, and a few months later returned home and was commissioned rear admiral. With the close of the war he returned to his home in Mobile, and devoted the remainder of his life to the practice of law. His death occurred Aug. 30, 1877.

MURDER TRIAL WILL BE CALLED TUESDAY IN VIRGINIA COURT

J. D. Harris, Accused of Murder of W.
A. Thompson—Case Attracts State's Attention.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Warrenton, Va., Sept. 27.—The case of J. D. Harris, accused of the murder of William A. Thompson here April 24 last, will be called for trial tomorrow in the Fauquier county court. The approach of the trial is viewed with the keenest interest, for both the slayer and his victim were men of prominence in the community. The tragedy was the result of a series of difficulties between Harris and Thompson.

The latter was an owner of a weekly newspaper in Warrenton, while Harris was a school teacher and a candidate for the office of supervisor of schools of Fauquier county. Thompson opposed his election. In addition to their political difficulties Thompson and Harris opposed each other in other matters. The feeling between them was so bitter that some time prior to the altercation that ended in Thompson's death the two men had indulged in a fist fight in which Thompson, who was larger than Harris, had beaten the latter.

The immediate cause of the shooting was, according to the testimony of eye witnesses, an attack on Harris by Thompson, preceded by threats made an hour or so before. As Thompson came to Harris the latter, it is said, having armed himself after hearing Thompson's threats, opened fire. The shooting occurred on Main street in front of the postoffice and directly across the street from the courthouse, in the late afternoon.

Thompson did not die immediately, and in an effort to save him a special train was made up and he was taken to Washington. At Providence hospital in that city an operation was performed, but several shots had perforated Thompson's intestines, and he died without having recovered consciousness. Harris was arrested, but released on $20,000 bail, which was furnished by several of the leading men of Warrenton.

Settlement here is about equally divided, as both men have strong adherents. Thompson was a native of Fauquier county, and was a familiar figure at Virginia horse shows and similar gatherings. Harris is a North Carolina man and has been in Warrenton only a few years. During that time, however, he made many friends, and when he was arrested little time was lost by his friends in coming to his support.

Tuesday evening all the delegates to the national convention as well as the members and friends of the Chicago Women's Trade Union League are invited to the University of Chicago settlement, 4300 Gross avenue, near Ashland avenue, to be the guests of Miss Mary McDowell, first president of the Chicago League. At this entertainment, the chorists of the Chicago League will sing "The Splendid Wheel Chorus" from "The Flying Dutchman" in costume, and short addresses will be made by the foreign delegates.

Wednesday afternoon, September 30, they will be the guests of the Chicago Kindergarten Institute, 40 Scott street, at which Mrs. Page and Miss Cronise will be the hostesses. There will be music, and short speeches will be listened to from our distant home delegates.
Among those present the career of Miss Mary R. MacArthur is perhaps the most striking. She is now 29 years old, but during the last seven years she has been at the center of the great English fight for women's rights, especially in labor. She was made secretary of the British Women's Trade Union League in 1903 and the same year was appointed delegate to the British Trade Union conference composed of the labor leaders of England.

For four years she was the only woman member of the London Trades council. She has organized many strikes of working girls against reduction in wages. She took an active part in the Anti-Sweating campaign which has resulted in the passage of the trades board bill through the house of commons to secure a minimum wage in sweated industries.

JANESVILLE PLOWS WIN THE CONTESTS

Carry Off Honors at Annual Contest at Big Rock, Ill.

Plows manufactured by the Janesville Machine company of this city and operated by farmers, with absolutely no help from any plow experts, took eight prizes at the fifteenth annual plowing contest held at Big Rock, Ill., on Saturday. The contest was open to competitors from all parts of the United States, and was the hardest fought of any that the Janesville plows have been entered in. The conditions too, under which the plows were to be run, were such as to severely test the machinery. Heavy rains and a wet, sticky soil, with a swamp at one end, made it hard work for some makes, the mouldboards clogging and spoiling the shape of their furrows.

The contest was conducted by the farmers in the vicinity of Big Rock, situated near Aurora, and they offer the premiums and award the prizes. Seven plows of the Janesville Machine company, which had been purchased by farmers in the region of the farm where the matches were held, and which had not been made especially for this contest, but such as were sold to them from the dealer, were entered against fourteen other plows, in all about a dozen makes. The grand sweepstakes prize, which is awarded to the farmer receiving the highest score for the best plowing done by any plow on the grounds, was awarded to a farmer who used a Janesville plow.

JANESVILLE LOST
GAME TO BELOIT

LINE CITY TROLLEY LEAGUE
NINE WON BY 2 TO 1.
CONTEST WAS VERY CLOSE
And Excitement Was Intense Throughout Time of Play—Catcher's Error Cost Janesville
the Game.
Deloit trolley league players totalated yesterday for the defeat they met at the hands of the Janesville team, a week ago Sunday, by beating Janesville 2 to 1. The game was a close one throughout and but for an error placed against the catcher might have resulted in a tie. Both teams were made up largely of league players.
The first inning opened with Janesville at bat. Fulton, first up, was struck out. Moe, the next man, reached first safely, and stole second but was caught in an attempt to steal third. Porter, the last man up, also failed to make first base.
Mills and Smith led off for Deloit, both striking out, and then, Porter, formerly with the Cleveland Ameri-

Moving Picture of Gregory in Fourth. came to bat. He lined out a nice little two-bagger, reached third and came home. McAuley, who followed Porter, got in a safe hit, but Pierce, who followed him, struck out and the side was retired.
In the second and third innings,
neither side scored, but in the fourth, Gregory, Deloit's pitcher, became wild and it looked as if Janesville would be able to tally. Good support for Gregory was all that prevented them

Porter Was Caught Out at the Plate. from doing so. With the bases full and the umpire calling balls, it appeared that Janesville might be given a run, but Rowland struck out and Deloit came to bat.
Janesville's only score was made in the sixth, when a strong two-bagger wallup by Porter brought in Moe from second. Porter attempted to score but was caught out at the home plate.
An error by the catcher for Janesville in the seventh inning cost them the game. McAuley and Pierce, for Deloit, struck out, and Hizer walked.
He stole second and third and was lodged on third when Erickson lined out a single-sacker. Anderson, Janes-ville's catcher, had the ball. Moe, short stop, signalled for it, intending to line it right back and catch out Hizer at home. Instead of throwing to Moe, Anderson threw to second, which was not covered, and Hizer tallied for the Line City.

The only wrangle with the umpire during the entire game was in the eighth and a Janesville player was penalized for that. Fulton, first man up, made a short drive to McAuley, second baseman, but McAuley dropped it and Fulton reached first safely.

Fulton attempted to steal second after the pitcher had thrown the ball.
The catcher caught it and lined it out to second, but Moe blocked the throw and Fulton, adding, reached the base safely. Fulton was called out by the umpire, but Janesville re-monstrating, he was allowed to go back to first and Moe was ordered out of the box for stopping the throw.
Janesville's batters struck out one,
two, three in the ninth and Deloit, having already won the game, did not bat.

GAVE WHITEWATER
A VERY CLOSE RUB

Janesville High School Football Team Put up Splendid Fight Against Heavier Opponents.
At Whitewater, Saturday afternoon, the Janesville high school football team made a splendid showing against the Normal team, holding their heavier opponents down to the low score of 11 to 6. The Normal players averaged 160 pounds, while the local bonny-tipping record was only 135.
The forward pass proved an excellent ground game for Janesville in every instance where it was tried and Green and Merrill were particularly deft and agile in this branch of the game.
Harry Ryan, whose punting was another feature of the contest, made the touchdown. During the latter part of the second half Mott was replaced at right guard position by Shawman.
Prof. Knudson was much gratified with the showing and thinks that when it has been whipped into shape the local eleven will be able to win back some lost laurels for the Janesville high school. The players and their positions were as follows:
Raymond Faltor, center; Brown, left guard; Mott, right guard; Russell Wilkinson, left tackle; Adler, right tackle; Koch, right end; Blank, left end; Green, quarterback; Ryan, fullback; Kost, right half; Verne Mor-

lowed and light refreshments were

It is up to the businessmen, to the professional men and to the manufacturers of the city whether Janesville is to raise itself from the pool of stagation and boom. The committees named at the meeting held last Friday evening have begun their work.
The sum of five thousand dollars, thought necessary as a starter for the boom, for the employment of a good live secretary to watch for the interests of the city, is to be subscribed by persons interested in the growth of Janesville. The duties of such a secretary would be many. Think what it would mean if the freight rates were lowered. It would induce new factories to move to this city, new factories would mean employment for hundreds of men, this would mean increased business for the stores, grocers, clothing, hardware, butcher shops, meat and, in fact, give every line of business a much-needed boom. The committees who are working in the interest of greater Janesville are H.
L. McManis and S. M. Smith, among the manufacturers; George Otto and H. M. Dendrick, for the West Side; F.
H. Jackson and Amos Rohrbach on the east side of the river; and P. J. Monat and P. L. Clemons, among the professional men. The great necessity of this move can not be over-estimated and it is trusted the committees will be able to report success when the time comes. Janesville needs a waking up and now is the time to do it. No one businessman can afford to devote his time for this purpose and the employment of a live secretary would solve the problem.

REGULARS CAMP AT THE CUT-OFF CITY

Battery F of the Fifth Field Artillery,
U. S. A., Pass Janesville
This Afternoon.
(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Janesville, Wis., Sept. 27.—Regdents of Evansville awakened this morning to find camped in their midst of Uncle Sam's crack artillery batteries—F of the Fifth Field artillery. It was after midnight when they arrived from Oregon, but within fifty minutes after reaching Evansville their tents were pitched and taps had sounded for the tired soldiers. The battery for the tired soldiers recently returned from its tour in the Philippines and over eighty per cent of the enlisted men are veterans.
Their arrival created considerable excitement last evening and this morning the camp was visited by many residents. The men were quartered in the fifty tents, capable of accommodating twelve to fourteen men each, and they live on field rations during their march.

HEARING ADJOURNED
UNTIL OCTOBER 20

Cronin Case Laid Over in Order That Depositions of Witnesses Might Be Made.

The hearing in the matter of the examination of Miss Agnes Cronin, administratrix of the estate of Almed Cronin, was adjourned Saturday afternoon until October 20. After Attorney T. H. Nolan, who appeared for Miss Cronin, had finished his cross-examination of Mrs. Cronin, J. P. Calculation and E. Rotherham, who had appeared for Mr. Cronin, were called to the stand and testified as to the wages they had paid to Mr. Cronin. This testimony was taken in order to show the possibility of saving the three thousand dollars in question. Sheriff Schelbel and District Attorney John L. Fisher both told the facts with regard to the removal of the three thousand dollars and its removal to the First National bank.
The reason for the long adjournment is that there are others who are wanted to testify in the case and depositions for these must be required. The depositions which will be made are those of A. Z. Carron, the Pike detective who was working on the case in January, and of a relative who has been here since the murder.

TOOK STALKS AND
THE ENTIRE CROP

Popcorn Growing on Milwaukee Ave-

Saturday.
Sometime Saturday afternoon a stranger driving a hay horse attached to a green wagon drove up to a lot on Milwaukee avenue, on which Fred Myhr had a fine crop of popcorn growing and calmly cut down the entire growth, taking stalks and all.
The corn was in the wagon. The corn was in the shape of seedling but ten days more before harvest, and contained between four and five bushels. The loss was not discovered until Sunday morning and Mr. Myhr is wondering if it is a mistake or some one actually stole his crop. Recently some who bunches of onions, growing near a house a bit further out on the avenue were stolen during the night while the owner slept.

PICTURES IN NATURAL COLORS

Colored Cinematograph Photographs May Be Produced by a New Roman Method.

One would think that with the invention of a successful method of producing colored pictures by photographing the advent of the colored moving picture could not long be delayed. It is, however, quite a different thing to make a color plate for ordinary size and apply the same principle and methods to a flexible film 100 or more feet long, and the latter task has not yet been accomplished. Colored cinematograph pictures may be produced by a method recently devised by a Roman artist, but the colors are due to optical illusion made possible by the rapid motion of the cinematograph film. Instead of a series of pictures, each of which differs slightly from the preceding, as in an ordinary moving picture film, the new process has pictures in sets of three, which are taken simultaneously through different color screens, as in the three-color system color printing. In the latter the three primary color pictures are superimposed by printing, bringing out the proper color relations. In the cinematograph no superposition is necessary, the three-colored pictures succeeding each other on the screen so rapidly that they blend to the eye and produce the desired effect. The film must be, of course, three times as long as usual, and must be run through the apparatus three times as fast. The proper primary color is given to each of the three partial pictures in each set by rotating in front of the projecting lantern a glass disk having three-colored sectors. The adjustments require great delicacy and accuracy.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

NEVER give a child mental paregoric any more than you would give it the real drug.

It's pretty hard sometimes to keep up with a child's mental activity, but it's as wrong to try to still it by evasion and admonitions to "run away and don't ask so many questions" as it is to still its physical activity by giving it soothing syrup.

The mother who, instead of trying to answer her child's difficult questions to the best of her ability, evades them by giving answers that don't answer or by turning its mind to some other subject seems to me about as poor a mother as the one who used to amuse her baby by covering her hands with something sticky and then sprinkling a lot of feathers on them.

The baby would sit for hours gravely picking at the feathers off his right hand with his left and then as gravely repeating the process the other way round.

The devil may have kept the baby quiet, but it seems to me that it was rather a cruel trick to play on a child one loved.

It might have been all very well for a kitten, but it wasn't just the thing for the beautiful awakening mind of a child.

Every mother wants her child to grow up as bright as possible. She knows that anyone who is to hold his own in the stress and strain of this busy world needs an active brain. She cannot then in any way afford to hinder its development.

Every question a child asks should be answered as truthfully and as helpfully as you possibly can answer.

Don't make the object of your answer to keep the child still for awhile, but to give it the information it wants.

It isn't just idle curiosity that makes a child ask so many questions. It is just the natural healthy curiosity of one who enters a strange land.

Suppose for a moment that you should suddenly be transplanted into a great big world where everything was strange and new to you.

Wouldn't you be full and brimming over with questions? And wouldn't it seem cruel to you if the people who had lived in that strange big place long enough to understand it pretty well—or at least to think they did—should always evade or half answer your questions?

There are times, of course, when to keep your tired brain on the alert to answer childish questions that don't always seem strictly necessary seems pretty hard. But no matter how tired you were you would surely never grudge an effort that made for your child's physical welfare.

And isn't his mental development as important?

CELEBRATED THE SILVER WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Hanson and Relatives Made Anniversary Memorable Saturday Night.

In company with about twenty members of the family, Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Hanson celebrated their silver wedding anniversary at their home, 526 Washington street, Saturday evening. The out of town guests included Mrs. Richard Schenck and son of Decorah, Ia., Miss Hannah Hanson of Chicago, and Miss Julia Jacobson of Clinton. A sumptuous repast was served and the host and hostess were the recipients of many handsome gifts. The president and treasurer of the Hanson Furniture company and his wife were married at Decorah twenty-five years ago.

Henry IV. Turban
The turban which appears in one of the new Henry IV. shapes—a hint of the coming winter. The shape is covered with grey velvet, puffed over the crown, laid in small pleats around the edge and held in place by a cord of the velvet. At the left is a star white algerette. Extremely picturesque are these new turban shapes, which promise to be so popular for the coming season. They will, without doubt, be becoming, but will necessitate a continuation of the elaborate coiffure—a quantity of hair being necessary to balance their huge proportions.

RAISED TWO POTATO CROPS THIS SUMMER

Joseph Zastoupel Shows Truck Gardeners How to Get Two Good Crops in a Year.

Joseph Zastoupel, who lives at 1320 Western avenue and who is at present acting as stationary engineer at the North-Western yards, has performed the feat of raising two good crops of potatoes on one plot of ground in one season, a feat that has surprised many of the farmers in this vicinity who would scarcely believe the story until they had inspected the tubers. This bit of truck gardening well illustrates the intensive farming practiced in the old country. The plot of ground which consists of about one and a half city lots was plentifully manured and carefully cultivated. The first crop, which was harvested July 6 and 7, sold for $3.40 a bushel and the second crop was planted on July 6 without replowing the ground. This second crop has just matured and the potatoes are even better than those secured during July.

Area Not the Biggest Factor.

SERMON BY TAFT IN SALT LAKE CITY

PRESIDENT PREACHES FROM PULPIT OF MORMON TABERNACLE.

THE VAST AUDIENCE CHEERS

Chief Executive is Inspired by the Example of Roosevelt, Who Delivered Preaching from the Same Platform Four Years Ago.

Salt Lake City, Sept. 27.—President Taft, from the pulpit of the famous Mormon tabernacle in this city preached a sermon on unity between people to a vast audience. He said the assemblage inspired him to follow in the footsteps of his predecessor, Theodore Roosevelt, who, four years ago, delivered a stirring preaching on the duties of good citizenship and right living from the same platform.

Mr. Taft did preach a sermon—text and all. The immense audience in the flag-draped edifice, the splendid musical program of operatic and patriotic selections, the enthusiastic cheering as President Taft appeared and the quick response of the audience, to points which he endeavored to impress upon his hearers, inspired him, the president declared, with higher thoughts of country and patriotism.

Appeals for Better Motives.

The president's sermon was an appeal for unity between the people, for attributing the best rather than the worst motives to the action of others when possible to do so and not to harbor hatred or animosity.

"A soft answer turneth away wrath, but grievous words stir up anger" was the text Mr. Taft selected from the book of Proverbs. The sermon was a homely utterance, largely made up of a relation of stories to give emphasis to the points.

From the tabernacle the president was driven to review about 20,000 school children. At one point along the line a thousand or more children had been arranged in a living flag, red, white and blue caps and capes serving to outline the national emblem.

Talks at Ogden.

Thence the president proceeded to the Young Men's Christian association, where he made a brief address to an audience composed entirely of men. Lastly the president attended service especially arranged for him at the Lutheran church. After this he left Salt Lake for Ogden, where he enjoyed an 18-mile ride through Ogden canyon and made his third address of the day at Lester park there.

When Senator Smoot introduced the president in the audience in the tabernacle the cheering was so great that Mr. Taft could not begin his sermon for several minutes.

"I thank you from the bottom of my heart," he said at last, "for this expression of welcome and good will. I have been impressed since coming into this magnificent structure with the thought that you have gathered here in part to hear me and that I had nothing to address to you worthy of such a magnificent presence."

Roosevelt Had a Mission.

"I am told that my distinguished predecessor, under the inspiration of an audience like this, delivered an address in the nature of a sermon upward of two hours in length. Now, he had the capacity; he had the spirit; and he had the relation to make such a pronouncement of moral force and inspiration. He knew how to appeal to the best that is in a man and a woman and arouse them to lift themselves to higher standards and higher ideals."

"But it has not been given to me to exercise that great influence which was his and which shone forth from him as he stood before men upon a platform. And yet I have felt that on this Sunday morning it was necessary for me to make such effort as I could to follow in something that may sound a bit like a sermon. And as sermons are begun with a quotation of a text having more or less relation to what follows, I am going to give you the words from Proverbs: 'A soft answer turneth away wrath, but grievous words stir up anger.'"

"It is a text that has forced itself upon my mind during the last ten years with especial vigor because it has come into contact with oriental peoples and with those descended from the Latin races of Europe and I have had a chance to compare their views of life and their methods of speech and their social conventions and amenities with those of the Anglo-Saxon race."

"We Anglo-Saxons are, we admit, a great race. We have accomplished wonders in hammering out against odds that seemed insurmountable, the principles of civil liberty and popular government and making them practical and showing to the world their benefits. But in so doing and in the course of our life, it seems to me, we have ignored something that our fellows of southern climes have studied and made much of; and that is the forms of speech and the methods of every day treatment between themselves and others. At first that seems superficial to us, who prefer 'no' and 'yes' and abrupt methods and communications in the shortest and curtest sentences, but my friends, we have much to learn from people of that kind of courtesy and politeness.

"The truth is that a man's life in his family, with his wife, with his children, with his mother, with his neighbor, is not made up of grand stand plays and all that sort of thing. It is made up by a series of little acts and those little acts and those little self-restraints are what go to make up the man's character. I agree that there are many men, and a great many of them I hope, who are better than they seem to their families, to their wives and to their children and to their neighbors and that when the exigencies arise they do betray and show forth elements of strength of character that ought to commend them to their fellow citizens and to their families."

"But it does seem as if they were depriving their families and their neighbors of something in their not living up to that standard in little things as well as in big things; and the truth is that if we yield to negligence in the little things, if we yield to the momentary desire to be lazy and not attentive and not courteous to every one so as to make every one feel as comfortable as possible during the day, we are going to cut down that higher character that we assume to have under greater exigencies when we are showing forth its strength. And so I say that our friends of the southern climes and our oriental friends have touched a point in philosophy, the philosophy of life, that we may well learn from them, and introduce into our lives more courtesy and more politeness, more real, genuine desire to make every body happy by the little things of life which, after all, constitute nearly all there is in life."

Taft at Butte and Helena.

Helena, Mont., Sept. 27.—The train bearing President Taft and his party arrived in Helena this afternoon and the local committee, which had accompanied it from Butte, hurried the chief executive at once to the fair grounds, where the state fair opened today. A tremendous crowd had assembled there to greet the president and he addressed the people briefly. Afterward he inspected the exhibits and then was taken for an automobile ride about the city. Senator Carter was in charge of the presidential party, and among those present was James J. Hill, who made a speech. At 7:30 this evening Mr. Taft will leave for Spokane, Wash.

This morning the president spent in Butte and Anaconda. At the latter place he had breakfast and visited the Washoe smelter of the Anaconda Copper Company. In Butte there was an automobile parade, and a welcoming address by Mayor Nevin, to which Mr. Taft responded. Then the president inspected the big copper mines and was the guest at luncheon of the Merchants' association.

DECLARES WAR ON FORESTERS.

Montana Will Out Federal Agents from the Forest Reserves.

Helena, Mont., Sept. 27.—The state of Montana has virtually declared war on the federal forestry service, when through the board of land commissioners, composed of the governor, attorney general and other officials, it directed its agent to proceed to Flathead county and employ "whatever assistance necessary to oust from a certain tract of land trespassers who refuse to acknowledge the commonwealth's rights therein."

It is impossible to learn whether the agent will muster in civilians or appeal to the executive for troops in procuring his ousting force. The land in question is occupied by forestry reserve officials and their assistants, who essayed to set it aside for "administrative purposes."

Under the terms of the enabling act in 1893, the state of Montana was given sections 16 and 36 in each township for schoolhouses, and the Flathead county tract in question is embraced in one of these. Seven years ago the Flathead forest reserve was created, and it included these sections. Similar conditions obtain in numerous other reserves, and it is estimated that 1,000,000 acres are in controversy.

Several months ago the state held an auction sale and disposed of 80 acres near Helton to the Great Northern railway. The supervisor of the Flathead forest was present and warned all bidders against buying the tract, saying the government did not recognize the state's title.

Smithsonian Institute Does Not Furnish Funds for African Expedition.

Washington, Sept. 27.—To set at rest allegations which have appeared quite generally over the country, regarding the source of the funds used by the Roosevelt hunting expedition in Africa, Secretary Walcott of the Smithsonian institution authorized the statement that not a cent of the cost comes from the funds of the institution or from the United States government.

WHITNEY COMING TO CIVILIZATION

EXPLORER COOK'S MOST IMPORTANT WITNESS IS "RUSHING HOME."

SAYS WILL EXPLAIN ALL

Telegrams That Peary Absolutely Refused to Allow Anything Belonging to Cook to Be Brought Aboard Steamer Roosevelt at Etah.

New York, Sept. 27.—Commander Robert E. Peary refused absolutely to allow any of the records or instruments of Dr. Frederick A. Cook to be brought aboard the steamer Roosevelt and was thus instrumental in causing these records to remain in a cache at Etah, Greenland, according to Harry Whitney, the New Haven sportsman, in a dispatch received in this city by Dr. Cook. The message, which came as a response to one sent by Dr. Cook, is as follows: "Started for home Roosevelt. Nothing arrived for me. Peary would allow nothing belonging to you on board. Said to leave everything in cache at Etah. 'Met Capt. Sam, North Star. Did not go back after going schooner bound St. Johns take steamer home, hope you well. See you soon. Explain all.'"

Dr. Cook was questioned as to his view of the situation created by the action ascribed to Commander Peary, but he declined to say anything derogatory of his rival.

Whitney has reported his arrival at Indian Harbor, Labrador on the relief ship Jennie, and it is expected that his statement relative to the north pole controversy will be given to the world very soon. In a message to his friend, Harry Benedict of New Haven, Whitney says he is "rushing home, adding that he has had a hard winter and wonderful shooting, and asking that Mr. Benedict notify his friends of his return to civilization."

In his first message Mr. Whitney makes no reference to Dr. Cook, although in a letter to his mother some time ago he reported having met Dr. Cook, but mentioned nothing about the north pole.

Anxiously Await Whitney.

Since his return from the arctic Dr. Cook has repeatedly declared that Harry Whitney would confirm his statement that he informed Whitney at Annatok, Greenland, of having reached the north pole. He imposed secrecy on Mr. Whitney, declaring that he did not wish Commander Peary to know of his achievement before he (Cook) had himself announced it to the world. For that reason Dr. Cook explains that Whitney did not tell Commander Peary of the matter when Peary transferred Whitney from the exploring ship Roosevelt to the Jennie.

While the scientists interested in the controversy declare that Whitney's statement, one way or the other, cannot affect the facts, the general public has evinced an eager desire to know if Dr. Cook, when he returned to Annatok and found Whitney, confided to the latter that he had reached the pole.

Cook to Sue Peary.

Dr. Frederick A. Cook contemplates the bringing of a suit against Commander Peary to recover damages for slander and defamation, according to friends of the Brooklyn explorer.

Dr. Cook himself had nothing to say regarding the proposed suit, but his secretary, Walter Lonsdale, admitted that the idea was seriously entertained, both by Dr. Cook and by John R. Bradley, Cook's banker. He said that affidavits had already been prepared in case it was definitely decided to bring the suit.

"But certainly nothing will be done just at present in the matter," said Mr. Lonsdale, "and as a matter of fact it is doubtful if anything will ever be done unless it is in retaliation."

Peary on Way to New York.

Portland, Me., Sept. 27.—The Peary arctic ship Roosevelt arrived at Eagle Island, Commander Peary's summer home, and after landing some of his personal effects, left for New York. Commander Peary said that if the boat reached New York in time it would take part in the Hudson-Fulton celebration and that he would be on the bridge.

It was learned last night from a source close to Commander Peary that the commander justifies his action of refusing to allow Dr. Frederick A. Cook's instruments or records on board the homeward bound steamer Roosevelt on the theory that he had been aware for some time of Cook's intention to claim the discovery of the north pole and that Peary therefore would sanction nothing to aid this project. Peary's forthcoming statement concerning Cook, it was learned, will charge that the Brooklyn explorer cannot produce shoes, sledges or other equipment which will show the wear and tear that comes from travel over the arctic ice. "This is the first intimation of any specific evidence that the commander will produce, although he has said from time to time that he has evidence enough to discredit Dr. Cook."

Nebraska Wins Rate Suit.

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 27.—In the first attempt in the country to regulate express rates the supreme court of Nebraska upheld the 55-cent act, which made a flat cut of 25 per cent. in express rates in Nebraska. The law has been in operation 16 months under injunction. The contentions of the state are upheld in every respect.

SPIRIT OF COMPROMISE

President Taft spoke in the Mormon temple, the other day, and his audience was largely interested in beet sugar, and therefore opposed to the President's Philippine policy. After telling the people that their government was necessarily a government of compromise he impressed the importance of cultivating a spirit of tolerance, and referring to the sugar question he said:

"Now, just for an instance, because I always like to deal with delicate subjects—take the matter of beet sugar. I am interested in helping along some people for whom I was a long time the only representative, and that is kind of informal representative, in Washington, by letting some of their sugar—I was in favor of letting all their sugar—into this market, because I did not think it would hurt you out here a bit.

"You are going ahead so rapidly that when I talk with a man out here, and he is not thinking of the tariff, he will tell me tales of the manufacture of sugar that will just make me think I want to invest all my money in it at once. But what did we do? We compromised, and we said to the people of the Philippine Islands, we will let you into our market to the extent of 250,000 tons, and no more, and then the home industry will go on; will not be injured certainly by that importation.

"And we made the compromise. Now that is what we do in congress and through the executive all the time, and while theoretically that may seem a rule of thumb method of government, in the long run as you look back through the history of the country you will find that the course pursued, which was the result of compromising the views of the majority into one sound and middle course, was much better than if we should follow some doctrinaire and tried to follow his theory to the uttermost.

"In other words, we can trust to the common sense of the American people through their representatives to work out the problems we have, and in that working out to give effect to the views of all the people, not all the effect to the view of every one, but to give some effect to the views of all."

"That is really all there is to the tariff question. The people of the west don't want to hear anything about free sugar or zinc, or any other western product. It is a compromise proposition from start to finish and the only equitable basis is 'the greatest good for the greatest number.'"

COQUETTE OF GAMES

In "Bacon Recollections of Sport," in the October Strand magazine, Conan Doyle names golf as one of his favorite games. "A game which takes four miles of country for the playing," says he, "must always have a majestic of its own. It is surely a great testimony to the qualities of a game when a man can be both enthusiastic and inefficient. It is a proof at least that a man plays for the game's sake and not for personal kudos. Golf is the coquette of games. It always lures one on and always evades one. Ten years ago I thought I had nearly got it. I thing so today. And ten years hence I may still have the same delusion. But my scarring cards will show, I fear, that the coquette has not yet been caught. The middle-aged lover cannot hope to win her smile."

ated on every golf course, and yet the game is so fascinating that it continues to attract men of all ages. One of the players on the Stinson golf course is always supplied with a good stock of gum as it preventive against profanity. He likes to tell of the old Scotch preacher, who said after an indifferent game, "Well, I think I have to give up." "What, give up golf?" said his companion. "Nay, nay, not golf, but preaching," was the reply.

The game is all right, but the Janesville course is not half appreciated. There are plenty of men past middle life and going down the slope who might prolong their days by spending a little time in God's fresh air and sunshine on the golf grounds.

EDUCATING NURSES

Philadelphia, the City of Brotherly Love, has an exhibition of practical benevolence in the work of the Philadelphia School for Nurses which is of surpassing interest to every one interested in the care of the sick, the education of nurses and the promotion of public health and sanitation.

The annual report showed that during the past year ten thousand two hundred and seventy-five patients were supplied with nurses, who otherwise could not have secured skilled nursing care. Four-fifths of this service was rendered gratuitously. It was shown also that in teaching facilities, available workers and number of students, the school ranks as the largest school for nurses in the world.

Several large classes of students are about to be enrolled in the Philadelphia School for Nurses, who will, doubtless, witness the extension of the work of the institution in accordance with plans now developing as a result of the recent New England conference. A large number of free two-year scholarships are available to young women throughout the entire country, preference being given to those living in the smaller towns and cities, and the rural districts.

These scholarships include room, board, laundering, uniforms, all necessary instruction, and railroad fare paid to the student's home town upon the completion of the course. A preparatory home study course and a short residence course are also available to those who desire to quickly prepare themselves for self-support, but are unable to devote two years to study. Any reader of this paper who may be interested in the general subject can, by addressing the school at 2219 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, Pa., get full details of the work, and the scholarships now available.

This school is under the auspices of the International Red Cross society, and it furnishes a splendid opportunity to young women, who possess the natural qualifications, to acquire practical knowledge and training. No time should be lost in filing applications, as the stock of scholarships will soon be exhausted.

It is well for Cook that he had his celebration in New York before Peary landed, as it now looks as though his time would be largely devoted to defending his discovery. In the meantime the people are happy, for all doubt concerning the pole has been dispelled. We know where it is and are perfectly willing to let it stay there.

The women of Denver are planning for congressional candidates in which both the republican and democratic party will be represented. A woman in congress will be a novelty, but the state of Colorado is equal to almost any emergency.

The city of St. Louis will devote the first week in October to another continental, in an effort to recoup some of the losses of the late flood.

Some editor from up the state has sprung the name of W. D. Board as a candidate for the senate. This ought to please his old friend La Follette.

The temperance crusade now going on in Chicago will result in a no-liquor campaign. What would the Windy City be without regulation?

President Taft finds time for a game of golf now and then, in his swing around the circle.

By WALT MASON

(Copyright, 1909, by George Mathew Adams.)

Tolling up and down the street, in the wintry snow, in the summer's glare and heat, evermore we go; not an hour have we to waste, till the day is gone; in our frenzied, foolish haste, always pressing on. In our youth we're gay and bent; always worried much, lest perchance an odd red cent may escape our clutch; driving others to the wall, working tooth and nail, making plans—and after all, what do they avail? Hustling, hustling in the strife, adding to our piles; minding all there is in life, that is worth our while. We've forgotten how to play, since becoming men; bring us back the yesterday, make us boys again! Let's forget a while the dimes, and the stocks and bonds; let us go, as in old times, swimming in the ponds! Robbing nests of humbees, for the honey heap, swiping apples from the trees, while the dog's asleep! Idle dream of idle mind! Dreams like this are wrong; sentenced to the sordid grind, we must plod along; wearing out the city's pave, wearing out our souls; over onward, till the grave parts us from our roll!

Has a Real Grievance.
The California man who struck at a fly, hit a moving saw and lost two fingers doubtless has an active appreciation of the fly menace, against which the scientists warn us.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

MARLBOROUGH THE LITTLE.

Pity the sorrows of the Duke of Marlborough!

He bewails the tendency of the times to make the nobility pay its fair share of the taxes and especially complains of the income tax which the new budget imposes on vast inherited properties.

This silly son of the house of Marlborough says he is weary of the struggle to take care of his property and would throw himself out of the window but for the brutal inheritance tax, which would "rob his son," the dukelet.

In other words, he is tired of living because he has to pay taxes on his income, and he dreads to die because his son would have to pay taxes on the inheritance.

Thus the duke.

What would John Churchill, the smooth, wily founder of the house of Marlborough, think of this wailing descendant of his?

The first Marlborough oscillated between the royal houses of Stuart and Orange as occasion and his purse demanded. If William III. was on top, Churchill was a strong adherent of Orange; if Charles II. seemed to have the best of it, he was for the Stuarts.

Able, nimble witted and treacherous, the first Marlborough never wailed against fate. Whatever charges are brought against him, it cannot be denied that he was a bold general and an able diplomat.

His noble pated, childishly indolent descendant is of a different sort of stuff. If the present duke should by some favorable chance jump out of a high window in his castle, why, there would be a dukely funeral, that's all.

And if current reports be true Connelley, the duchess and American wife, who brought the dukedom a good slice of old Commodore Vanderbilt's millions, while she would be chief mourner at the funeral, would not weep as those who have no hope.

The people of England are to be congratulated.

Through the income tax and the inheritance tax they will get back some of that money and land long ago stolen from them by old Jack Churchill before and after he became earl, privy counselor and first lord of the bed-chamber to King William.

And if to get back some of that ill gotten property of the people his petty descendant must needs jump out of the window, why, let him.

Moreover—

Would it be treason to suggest that ford that. Forget it.

It would be a good thing to pass an income and inheritance tax that would make some of our own money lords feel like jumping out of a window?

Non-Magnetic Ship.
The first ship ever constructed in which iron and steel and other magnetic metals will practically have no part is described in Popular Mechanics. With the exception of thin cast-iron liners in the cylinders of the internal combustion engine, and the steel casings necessary for operating the valves, aggregating less than 500 pounds, there will be no magnetic materials used. The hull will be constructed as thoroughly and substantially as any merchant ship afloat. The keel, stem, stern post, frames and dead-wood will be of white oak; the deck beams, planking, and ceiling will be of yellow pine, and the deck of Oregon pine in long lengths.

The fastenings will consist of locust-wood nails, copper and bronze bolts, and composition splices. All metal deck fittings, and metal work on spars and rigging will be of bronze, copper, and gun-metal. This unusual vessel will be used in making a non-magnetic survey of the oceans.

A Congratulation Over the Phone.

Only yesterday I extracted seven teeth for a lady, and her husband just rang me up on the phone to say that "She spoke very highly of the way I did the work." She had been to a great many dentists but I was the most painless of any she had ever had.

No it goes every day. I cannot talk personally with everybody I would like to reach in a business way in this world.

Physical ability is unequal to such a task. But I can speak in a limited way to you through these columns. I am not talking simply to say something.

I have something to say. It is this: "I am able to do Painless Dental work."

This ought to interest every man, woman and child.

Its attainment has been the desire of every progressive dentist for decades.

SEVERAL OFFENDERS
BEFORE THE COURT

Eugene Bowden Will Be Tried for Theft Next Monday—Charles Eunsen Carried Concealed Weapon—Seven Drunks.

Eugene Bowden, a sandy complexioned youth who was, up to a week ago, employed at the Western Shoe Co.'s factory, was haled before Judge Lange in municipal court this morning to answer to a charge of stealing a gold watch and chain worth $35 and $1.75 in money from A. J. Burton, a fellow boarder at the Riverside hotel. The theft occurred Sunday forenoon, the valuables being taken from Burton's closet while he was asleep, and later found by the police in the possession of Bowden. The prisoner was committed to jail for seven days, set for Monday, Oct. 4, and haled at $500. He was unable to furnish the bonds and went to the county jail where his mental condition will probably be subjected to an investigation by physicians, there being some in jail, was imposed. He paid his fine this noon.

Charles Eunsen Fined
Charles Eunsen returned from a stroll into the country yesterday in a more or less besotted condition and when the police had placed him under arrest and examined the contents of his pockets they came upon a loaded revolver. In municipal court this morning he pleaded guilty to a charge of carrying concealed weapons and a fine of $10 and costs amounting to $2.50, with the alternative of 15 days in jail, was imposed. He made arrangements to pay the fine.

Seven drunks, five of them arrested on Saturday, were also in court today. George Opfel pleaded guilty, a fine and costs amounting to $2.10 with the alternative of five days in jail was imposed. The offender went to the handle, John Kendrick, William Barry, August Burke, and Mike Holleran made arrangements to pay their fines and costs of $2.10 each. Charles Eys and John Murray, vagrants, were given ten days.

ROUTED GANG OF CARD SHARPS ON A TRAIN EN ROUTE FOR MADISON

Detectives Richard Faupel and Conway Made Three Arrests and Recovered a Milwaukee Victim.
C. & N. W. Ry. Co. Detectives Richard Faupel and Conway, while en route for Janesville on Saturday, prevented a gang of card sharps from fleecing a Milwaukee insurance man, and arrested three of the crooks; and took them before Judge Donovan in Madison, who sentenced them to pay fines of $200 each or spend six months in jail. They were aboard a train bound for the Capital city and the arrests were made when a harmless game of pitch suddenly took on a plumbing poker aspect, the victim receiving four aces on the deal and reaching for his pocket-book when the dealer, who had taken pains to provide himself with a straight flush, suggested a big bet. There were half a dozen associate crooks, all bound for the Jefferson fair, on the same coach but the stampede to free their brethren which they meditated was never carried into execution. One to Janesville that evening, Mr. Faupel, it will be remembered, was instrumental in bringing about the arrest and prosecution of Alwell and Miller in this city last spring.

OBITUARY.

Ruth Elizabeth Doomer
After months of weary suffering death came to the relief of Ruth Elizabeth Doomer at 10 o'clock Saturday evening and the three spirit went out to the life beyond. Ruth was 16 years old. Never very strong she was obliged to give up her work in the high school last May and soon after was confined to her room.

During the long summer she fought bravely and patiently the disease which held her in its grasp until the unequal struggle ended and the mother, whose loving ministrations had been a constant comfort through the long conflict was free to face at last with the tragedy, which sooner or later comes to every home.

Ruth was a member of the Methodist church, and an active worker in the Young People's society. She was a lovable girl, possessing traits of character which won the love and friendship of all who knew her. The youngest in a family of seven she had long been to the mother like the baby in the home, gentle to her the sorrow comes with peculiar sadness. Death is never a welcome messenger, but when the summons comes to the traveler who is stepping down the slope, the expected has happened, and but little surprise is expressed. Just why he marks for a victim a young life, full of hope and anticipation, is one of the mysteries yet unsolved.

There is comfort in the memory, which lingers like a benediction, and so there will come to the home to which Ruth contributed so much of sunshine and happiness, a hallowed memory.

Her old pastor, Rev. J. H. Tippet, has been called from Appleton to attend the funeral which will be held at the home on South Main street Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The remains will rest at Oak Hill.

Mrs. A. F. Rice.

The funeral of Mrs. Rice will be held Tuesday at four o'clock at Oak Hill chapel. Rev. J. T. Tippet will officiate.

NEW STEAM FIRE ENGINE TESTED THIS AFTERNOON

Tryout Held in Alley Back of Main Street—Engine When Sank in Earth of River Bank.

This afternoon in the alley at the rear of the stores on South Main street a test of the new steam fire engine was held. The engine was stationed on the bank of the river slightly in the rear of H. S. Thonitz' saloon, while the hose wagon with the combination nozzle was placed some distance back of J. M. Postwick's store. The 1½, 1½ and 2 inch nozzles were used. The fireman had considerable difficulty in spotting the machine close enough to the river to secure a supply of water through the intake pipe. When placed close to the shore, the weight of the engine and truck caused the wheels to sink three or four inches in the bank. Plans were used to rent the rear wheels on and prevent this.

PEOPLE'S COAL CO.
OFFICE RANSACKED

By Thieves Sometime Last Evening and About $4 Taken from Little Drawer in the Safe.

Sometime during the night the People's Coal Co. office on Pleasant street was entered by thieves or a thief and three or four dollars taken from a little drawer in the safe. The safe had been left unlocked and likewise the window, so that the way was easy after an outer screen had been pried off. A rolltop desk was also opened with the aid of coal and carpenter's chisels but nothing of value was obtained therefrom. Shielded from observation by the large gate in front of the building, the night prowlers, supposed to have been boys, were able to work with little fear of detection or interruption. The same office was entered in a similar fashion about a year ago.

GOLF FESTIVITIES
CLOSE ON TUESDAY

Harvest Home Supper and Dance at the Glendale Golf Club House Tomorrow Evening.

Tomorrow evening, Tuesday, will mark the official end of the season's weekly dances and club supper at the Glendale Golf Club. Since the clubhouse was formally opened on Decoration day the weekly Tuesday club day supper and dance has been a source of enjoyment to the members and tomorrow's dance will be particularly a happy event. Not only has a special supper been prepared, but the clubhouse will be most tastefully decorated and for the occasion, Jack lanterns and other reminders of the autumn season will be prominent as will the late fall flowers. Carter and Menzies' orchestra will furnish the inspiration for the dancing and to add to the pleasure of the members special innovations are planned. All residents of the city, even though not members of the club, are invited to attend this closing party and doubtless many will avail themselves of the opportunity. Arrangements have been made for the golf bus to meet the cars leaving the Myers Hotel corner at six, seven, twenty, eight, and eight-forty. The last bridge game will be held on Friday next. While the clubhouse season will be officially closed tomorrow the members can secure the services of the chef by telephoning until cold weather sets in.

Farm Sale! Big Sacrifice

320-acre farm that cannot be surpassed anywhere in the State of Wisconsin. It was the pride of a rich man who delighted in building a farm which should outclass anything in the state.

The owner recently died and the heirs not being inclined to farming wish to turn the property quick, before it can deteriorate in any way, 200 acres are cleared and 120 acres are under the highest state of cultivation.

The buildings are all strictly modern: A fine, large modern residence with the latest conveniences, a large basement barn, a large hay barn, granaries, machinery buildings, and other out buildings too numerous to mention. About $3,500 worth of log timber, besides a lot of cordwood left on the place.

The finest kind of roads to the place and only 4 1/2 miles from the fine city of Marshfield with a population of about 9,500.

Soil is a rich, clayey loam which is pronounced by the highest state authorities as the best in the State of Wisconsin. The land is gently rolling and the property couldn't be any nicer if you made it yourself.

The buildings alone are worth $10,000. About $1,000 worth of machinery goes with the place.

SACRIFICE PRICE ONLY $55.00 PER ACRE.

They left the rail and walked slowly forward, side by side, without speaking; and Logothetti told himself how utterly happy he should be if Baraka could turn into Margaret and be walking with him there; yet something answered him that since she was not by his side he was not to be pitted for the company of a lovely Tartar girl whose language he could understand and even speak tolerably; and when the first voice observed rather drily that Margaret would surely think that he ought to feel very miserable, the second voice told him to take the goods the gods sent him and be grateful; and this little antiphony of Ormuzd and Ahurman went on for some time, till it occurred to him to stop the duo by explaining to Baraka how a European girl would probably slip her arm, or at least her hand, through the arm of the man with whom she was walking on the deck of a yacht, because there was generally a little motion at sea, and she would like to steady herself, and when there was none, there ought to be, and she would do the same thing by force of habit. But Baraka looked at such behavior quite differently.

"That would be a sort of dance," she said. "I am not a dancing girl. I have seen men and women dancing together, both Russians in Samarkand and other people in France. It is disgusting. I would rather go unloved among my own people!"

"Which may Allah forbid!" answered Logothetti devoutly. "But where there are Englishmen, Allah does nothing; the women go without veils, and the boys and girls dance together."

"I have done worse," said Baraka, "for I have dressed as a man, and if a woman did that among my people she would be stoned to death and not buried. My people will never know what I have done since I got away from them alive. But he thought he was leaving me there to die!"

"Surely, I cannot see why you wish to marry a man who robbed you and tried to compass your death! I can understand that you should dream of killing him, and he deserves to be burnt alive, but why you should wish to marry him is known to the wisdom of the blessed ones!"

"You never saw him," Baraka answered with perfect simplicity. "He is a beautiful man; his beard is like the rays of the morning sun on a ripe cornfield. His eyes are bright as an eagle's, but blue as sapphires. He is much taller and bigger and stronger than you are. Do you not see why I want him for a husband? Why did he not desire me for his wife? Am I crooked, am I blinded by the sun, or have I six fingers on both hands and a hump on my shoulder like the Witch of All? Was my portion a cotton shift, one brass bangle and a horn comb for my hair? I gave him the riches of the world to take me, and he would not! I do not understand. Am I an evil sight in a man's eyes? Tell me the truth, for you are a friend!"

"You are good to see," Logothetti answered, stopping and pretending to examine her face critically as she stood and faced him.

"I do not desire you to speak for yourself," returned Baraka. "I wish you to speak for my man, since I go about unveiled and any man may see me. What would they say in the street if they saw me now, as a woman? That is what I must know, for he is a Frank, and he will judge me as the Frank judge when he sees me! What will he say?"

"Shall I speak as a Frank? Or as they speak in Constantinople?"

"Speak as he would speak, I pray. But speak the truth."

"I take Allah to witness that I speak the truth," Logothetti answered. "If I had never seen you, and if I were walking in the Great Garden in London and I met you by the bank of the river, I should say that you were the prettiest dark girl in England, but that I should like to see you in a beautiful Foringl hat and the best frock that could be made in Paris."

Baraka's face was troubled, and she looked into his eyes anxiously.

"I understand," she said. "Before I meet him I must have more clothes, many beautiful new dresses. It was shameful, but I was easy to dress as a man, after I had learned, for it was always the same—the difference was three buttons—or four buttons, or a high hat or a little hat; not much. Also the Foringl men button their garments as the Mussulmans do, the left over the right, but I often see their women's coats buttoned like a Hindu's. Why is this? Have the women another religion than the men? It is very strange!"

Logothetti laughed, for he had really never noticed the rather singular fact which had struck the born Asiatic at once.

"But this woman's dressing is very difficult to learn," Baraka went on, leaning back upon the rail with both elbows, and sticking out her little white shoes close together. "Without the girl Maggy whom you have found for me—but her real name is Gulia, and she is a good Mussulman—without her, Allah knows what I should do! I could not put on these things for myself; alone, I cannot take them off. When I was like a man, buttons! Two, three, four, twenty—what did it matter? All the same way and soon done! But now, I cannot tell what I am made of. Allah knows and sees what I am made of. Hooks, eyes, strings, little bits one way, little bits the other way, like the rigging of ships—those Turkish ships with many small sails that go up the Bosphorus, you remember? And it is all behind, as if one had no front! Gulia knows how it is done. But if I were alone, without her help, Allah is my witness, I would tie the things all round me decently and sit very still for fear they should come off! That is what I should do!"

The Greek thought her extremely amusing. She punctuated her explanations with small gestures indicative of her ignorance and helplessness.

"You will soon grow used to it," he said. "But you must get some pretty things in Paris before you go to meet the man. It would also be better to let your hair grow long before meeting him, for it is hard to wear the hats of the Foringl ladies without hair."

"I cannot wait so long as that. Only to get pretty dresses, only so long! I will spend a thousand pounds or two—is that enough? I have much money in Paris; I can give much."

"You can get a good many things for a thousand pounds, even in Paris," Logothetti answered.

Baraka laughed.

"It will not be what I paid for the first clothes after I ran away," she said. "I did not know then what the stones were worth! A little ruby to one woman for a shift and an over-tunic, a little ruby to another for a pair of shoes, a little ruby for a veil and a hand-blanket, all little rubies! For each thing one! I did not know; the women did not know. But at Samarkand I sold one for money to a good Persian merchant, and what he gave me was enough for the journey, for me and the old woman servant I hired there, till we got to Tiflis; for the Persian merchants everywhere gave me letters from one to another, and their wives took me in, or I should have been robbed. That is how I reached Stamboul after many, many months, more than a year. The Persian merchants are good men. All fear them, because they are wise in their dealings, but they are honest men. They do not lie, but they are silent and shake their heads, and you must guess what they mean; and if you do not guess right, that is your fault, not theirs. Why should they speak when they can hold their peace? But this is all emptiness! We must talk of the fine dresses I must buy in Paris, and of what I must put on my head. The barbers in Paris sell wigs. I have seen them in the windows, very well made, of all colors, even of the Khenna color. I shall wear a wig, so that the beautiful Foringl hat will stay on. I shall perhaps wear a Khenna-colored wig."

"I should not advise a wig," said Logothetti gravely, "certainly not one of that dye."

"You know, and you are a friend. When I feel rested we will go to Paris, and you shall take me to all the richest shops and tell them in French what I want. Will you?"

"I shall do all I can to help you," answered the Greek, wondering what would happen if his friends met him plotting a lovely barbarian about between the smartest linen draper's and the most fashionable dressmaker's establishment in the Rue de la Paix.

The two dined on deck, with shaded lights, but screened from the draught of the ship's way. The evening was cool, and the little maid had dressed Baraka in a way that much disturbed her, for her taper arms were bare to the elbows, and the pretty little ready-made French dress was open at her ivory neck, and the skirt fitted so closely that she almost fanned herself in man's clothes again. But on her head she would only wear a large veil, confined by a bit of gold cord, and she drew one fold under her chin, and threw it over the opposite shoulder, to be quite covered; and she was glad when she felt cold, and could wrap herself in the wide traveling cloak they had bought her, and yet not seem to do anything contrary to the customs of a real Foringl lady.

DEAD NOW NUMBER 200 IN LOUISIANA

Vultures Hover Over State, Feeding on Victims of Hurricane.

New Orleans, Sept. 27.—Conservative estimates with additional reports of wrecked boats and homes along the Louisiana coast place the death list of those who perished in last Monday's tropical hurricane, that swept the states of Louisiana and Mississippi, at no less than 200, and it will probably include more. While man's bodies have been recovered, there is every reason to believe that many more will be discovered and that others have gone down to watery graves that will never be known or marked.

Thousands of dollars worth of supplies have been sent to the refugees and the work of rescue and assistance is still going on.

It is reported also that sickness is beginning to appear in some of the refugee camps and to meet this new condition a health bureau has been organized in Terrebonne parish and daily visits of physicians, with nurses attending the sick have been inaugurated.

Tales of terrible hardship are becoming commonplace. One woman clung for 24 hours to a raft on which the dead body of her husband lay. A family of seven appeared at Houma, none of whom had tasted food for four days. Bannan Nelange was brought to that town with his knees pierced by a gulf fish called a sting-ray. Until his arrival he had received no medical attention.

In Grand Cailion, floating on a bit of plank, was found a nine-months-old baby, alive after three days without food.

In Little Cailion, Chalosse Armogone, a resident of that section, found an eight-months-old baby tied to a tangled mass of debris, two and a half miles from the nearest home.

Charvillat Dupre swam three miles, pushing a heavy plank to which his wife and three children clung. Olin and Claude Nagrin clung for more than a day to a floating log, and many others had similar experiences.

Over the devastated marshes, strewn with carcasses of animals and, possibly with human bodies, flocks of vultures hover. Many who remained in the stricken section along the Terrebonne coast are camping on the higher spots and searching for their scattered household effects. Water is the first need of these survivors. They depended entirely on their cisterns, but not a cistern remained standing and all the water courses have been flooded with salt water.

EXPORTS SHOW HEAVY DECLINE.

Foodstuffs in 1909 Fall Heavily Below Former Years—Especially Cattle.

Washington, Sept. 27.—A marked falling off in the exportations of practically all of the articles of foodstuffs from the United States occurred during the present year, according to a statement issued by the bureau of statistics.

In scarcely any of the principal articles of foodstuffs, it is also shown, are the figures of export values as high in 1909 as in immediately preceding years, although the prices per unit are, in most cases, higher in 1909 than in earlier years.

The total value of all foodstuffs, including food animals, exported in the fiscal year 1909 was but $428,000,000, against $521,000,000.

The figures show that the share exported of the wheat and corn crops of the United States has been materially less since 1903 than at any time during the 26-year period immediately preceding that date.

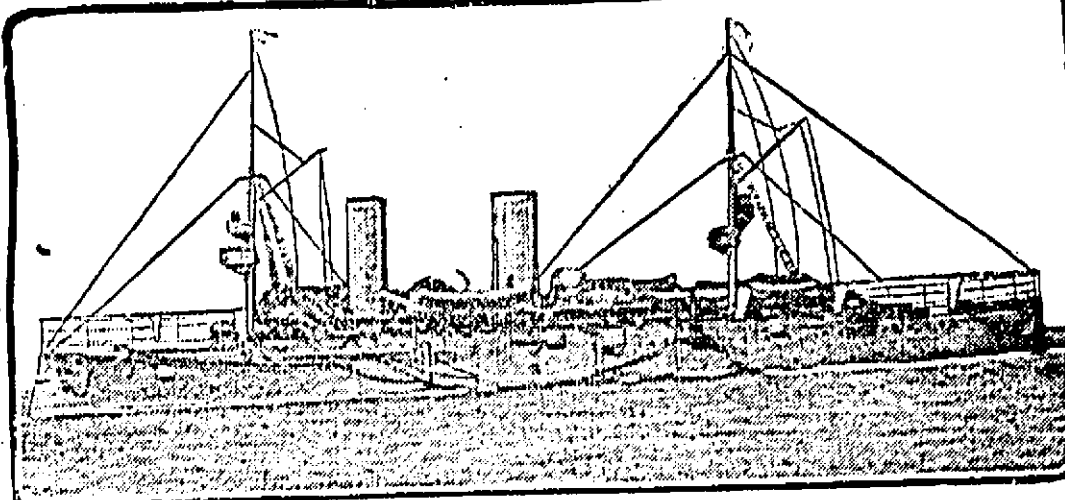

Meat exportations also show a marked falling off when compared with their export record during the past decade.

The total value of all meat and dairy products exported fell from $211,000,000 in 1906 and $202,000,000 in 1907 to $167,000,000 in 1909, despite the higher prices which prevailed in the latter year.

The number of cattle exported was less than half the annual average during the five-year period immediately preceding.

Men's Advertising

Concerning the Issue of Wednesday, Sept. 29th

This issue of The Gazette will contain the finest body of men's wear advertising ever presented to the men of Rock County. Its advertising columns will be practically a style review of the coming season.

You will remember when the general advertising of any special brand of clothing, shoes, cravats, collars, hosiery, shirts, umbrellas, or shaving tools was almost unthought of. You bought shoes by size, and neckties by color. There was no name on them.

You bought an umbrella with about an even chance that it wouldn't turn inside out at the first hard storm. The idea of guaranteed box was as far off as that of a modern safety razor.

There was no such thing as a fixed standard of style, quality or price.

Now there are dozens of dealers advertising these lines regularly, who guarantee and maintain a rigid standard of style and quality.

They are compelled to maintain it. Why? Because their goods are backed by their names, and the future—indeed the very life—of their business depends upon satisfied customers.

In buying these advertised goods in preference to those which are without recognized reputation to maintain, you simply serve your own best interests. You are absolutely sure of correct style, unvarying quality and longest service.

IT IS ADVERTISING THAT HAS BROUGHT ABOUT THESE CONDITIONS. IT IS ADVERTISING THAT IS TENDING TO STANDARDIZE ALL GOODS. AND WHILE PROGRESSIVE MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS BENEFIT LARGELY BY IT, IT IS YOU, THE CONSUMER, WHO RECEIVES THE MOST BENEFIT.

TUMOR OF FOUR YEARS GROWTH

Removed by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lindley, Ind. — Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound removed a cyst tumor of four years' growth, which three of the best physicians declared incurable. They said that only an operation could help me, I am very glad that I followed a friend's advice and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for it has made me a strong and well woman, and I shall recommend it as long as I live. — Mrs. May Fry, Lindley, Ind.

One of the greatest triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the conquering of woman's dread enemy—tumor. If you have mysterious pains, inflammation, ulcers, or discharges, don't wait for time to confirm your fears and go through the horrors of a hospital operation, but try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and such unquestionable testimony as the above proves the value of this famous remedy, and should give confidence and hope to every sick woman.

If you would like special advice about your case, write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

"You are good to see," Logothetti answered, stopping and pretending to examine her face critically as she stood and faced him.

"I do not desire you to speak for yourself," returned Baraka. "I wish you to speak for my man, since I go about unveiled and any man may see me. What would they say in the street if they saw me now, as a woman? That is what I must know, for he is a Frank, and he will judge me as the Frank judge when he sees me! What will he say?"

"Shall I speak as a Frank? Or as they speak in Constantinople?"

"Speak as he would speak, I pray. But speak the truth."

"I take Allah to witness that I speak the truth," Logothetti answered. "If I had never seen you, and if I were walking in the Great Garden in London and I met you by the bank of the river, I should say that you were the prettiest dark girl in England, but that I should like to see you in a beautiful Foringl hat and the best frock that could be made in Paris."

Baraka's face was troubled, and she looked into his eyes anxiously.

"I understand," she said. "Before I

TWO TRUST COMPANIES ASSIGN

Lack of Money the Cause—Depositors Will Be Paid in Full.

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 27.—The Land Trust Company and the Mercantile Trust Company, both of this city, will not open their doors to-day, arrangements having been made whereby they will make assignments to State Banking Commissioner Berkeley.

Lack of money is given as a reason for the assignments, a crisis being reached on Saturday when a run was made on the Mercantile Trust Company.

The Land Trust Company, with a capital of $500,000 arranged about a year ago to take over the Mercantile Trust Company, which has a capital stock of $750,000, but was unable to meet all the obligations to complete the merger.

State Banking Examiner White stated that all the depositors would be paid in full.

Nine Persons Hurt in Collision.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—Nine persons were seriously hurt and scores were cut and bruised in a collision of the incoming Chicago, Burlington & Quincy suburban train from Aurora and the Chicago & Alton Kansas City express in the train yards at West Fourteenth street last night.

Three hundred passengers on the suburban train were thrown from their seats and became panic-stricken. Many tried to escape through the windows when they found the doors blocked or jammed shut and were injured by the broken glass and by falls. Others were kicked and trampled in the rush for safety.

Among those injured were the wife, mother and father of State Senator Walter A. Lantz. The senator's wife was the most severely injured and was taken to the Presbyterian hospital.

Alleged Incendiary Inmate.

Evansville, Ind., Sept. 27.—Philip Klein, who was arrested on a charge of burning buildings in this city aggregating losses of $300,000, is believed by the police to be insane.

19c Per Yard

THIS lot comprises beautiful new striped effects and printed warp designs. They are from 5 inches to 6 inches wide and are worth from 30c to 50c per yard. It is one of the most beautiful lots we have ever offered.

These ribbons will be on sale one week and then they go to our Beloit store for a sale there. The conditions of this sale are these: The manufacturer with whom we do the bulk of our ribbon business, occasionally having lots of this kind and wishing to favor us, consigns a quantity of these ribbons to us on condition that we will offer them one week in Janesville and one week in Beloit and then return them all uncut pieces. The only string they put on us is that we offer them at 19c and keep all cut pieces. While these ribbons would easily bring much more money, we agree with the manufacturer to offer them at 19c, his object being to force us to turn off a lot of the ribbons.
